Dear Mother,

I received your letter yesterday. I am quite well. I am up the line again. The weather conditions are much better now, though it gets warm at times.

I have not heard from Reggie yet.

We have been bombarded heavily yesterday and today. Yesterday we had tear gas over. It makes one's eyes smart.

I have not received the paper yet this week. I expect I'll get it tomorrow. It's getting small nowadays but it's interesting of course.

I'm sorry I haven't answered Percy's letter yet but I'll do so as soon as possible.

Your affectionate son
Lewis.
